All your information and business processes
at the touch of hand.

Enterprise Content Management

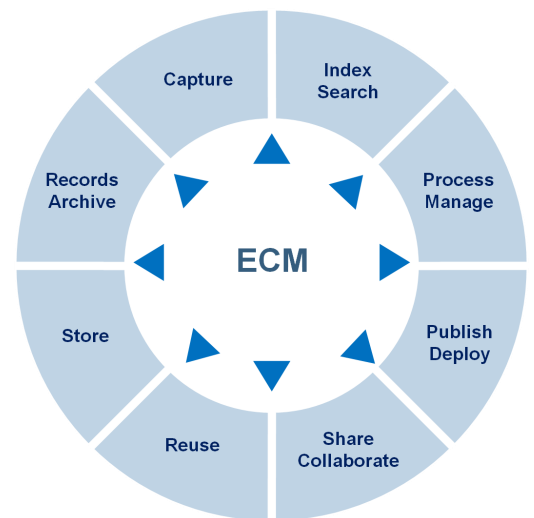

Nowadays, thousands of documents, electronic records, and Web content elements are scattered throughout an enterprise. This creates islands of information and knowledge, internal collaboration challenges, compromised privacy of constituent information, and slow, error-prone decision making.

With the Enterprise Content Management (ECM) solution, Konsort helps it's clients eliminate paper by providing an electronic filing cabinet. Having this data all in electronic form, enables you to streamline internal and external business processes, eliminate redundancies, and increase process automation.

You can improve the speed of your business processes by eliminating manual steps, reducing latency between them, and enabling critical processes to be conducted in parallel. ECM improves the quality of results by ensuring that all transactions follow the same business process rules on which your enterprise runs today.

enterprise content management

Documents would be: all digital, electronically archived in a single repository and accessible in real-time to qualified users.

Your data contains Gold!

Let our BI Solution extract it.

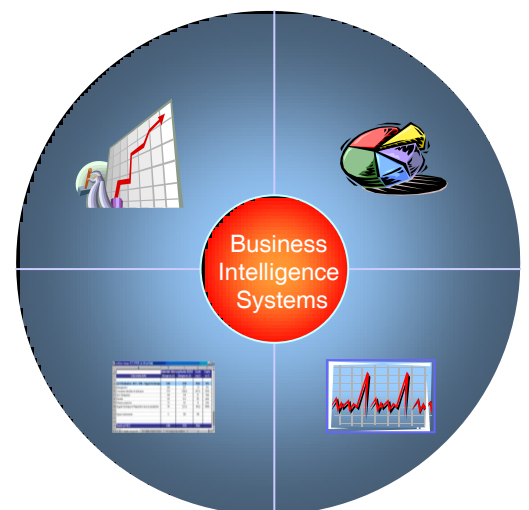

Business Intelligence

Just where the competition is harsher, only the one, who finds the information and uses it first, can take the advantage.

All the head managers of the companies often face with difficult questions that need quick answers. They should take every day decisions that will influence in the future of their activity, and to achieve this they need the right information in the right time.

Through the “Business Intelligence” offer, Konsort helps you to build up your reporting and analyzing systems in order to better administrate in a short time your activity, to have under control the profitability of your products, to know the specifics of your customers with their capacity and their risks, and a lot of other applications in other fields.

reporting systems

Our reporting and analyzing systems, give you the possibility to sort out very quickly from your operational data, clear information, which is structured to be in service of your activity.

Enterprise Resource Planning

Today's market success depends on the ability to adapt to changes, build lasting relationships with customers, and get to market quickly.

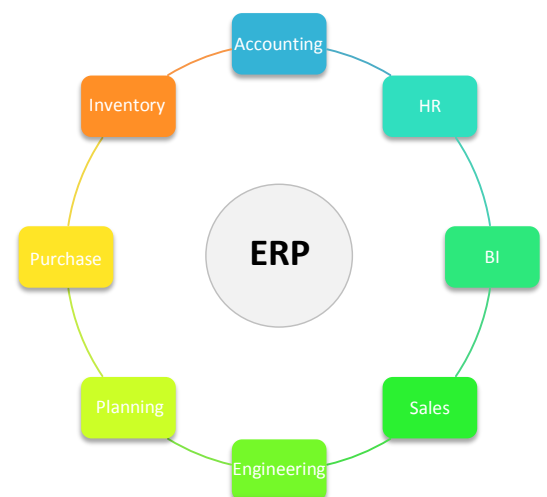

To accomplish these goals, there is the need of an accurate view of the enterprise's operations and costs, as well as complete visibility across the enterprise's sales and customer activities.

Konsort introduces SAP Enterprise Resource Planning solution which provides the right technology to solve these issues.

With the help of mySAP ERP, you can improve business processes, increase collaboration with suppliers and customers, gain agility in your operations, and optimize the use of your enterprise resources.

mySAP ERP is the key to enhanced financial processes and reporting, significant cost savings and centralized services for managing: enterprise assets, procurement, logistics, project portfolios, service quality, etc.

enterprise resource planning

A successful enterprise in today's integrated marketplace must have ERP software to orchestrate business processes to include their customers and suppliers, to hire the best talents, to provide stakeholders and managers with financial transparency, to inspire complete confidence, and to continually innovate.
